I've done this before many times and have never had this particular problem so it must be something with docker. My test project pulls in a docker-compose.yml file which I run in the docker container. Here is my docker-compose file: version: "2" services: web: build: context:.. dockerfile: build.docker #... anything else selenium: image: selenium/hub entrypoint: - python3 - selenium-standalone #... anything else Once I run the container and navigate to

Hello, currently i have downloaded alarta quartus ii 13.1 crack & also downloaded the drivers already. i also have an alfa ashiel or muxsix 2 and a usb serial monitor asd 1221. i'm trying to program my alfa ashiel or mux six 2 using quartus so i could to connect it to my computer but i wasn't able to make the connection to it, i've downloaded the drivers for my mux six 2 asd 1221 but i'm still experiencing the same problem. the usb serial monitor connected to my mux 6 2 asd 1221 works fine, but it wouldn't program the alfa ashiel or mux six 2. Thanks.Q: Create virtualenv ignoring the system python? I have python2.7.2 installed on a MacOSX Lion installation, and I would like to create a virtualenv that is as isolated as possible. The reason is that I don't want to mess with global system folders (where users' libs and distrubution-provided libraries get installed, and also where symbolic links get dropped). So far I have: $ sudo /usr/bin/python2.7 --version Python 2.7.2 $ source /Users/username/.local/lib/python2.7/site-packages/pip/_vendor/virtualenv.py Password: Created virtual environment. New python executable in /Users/username/.local/bin/python2.7 Installing setuptools, pip, wheel...done. The created virtual environment is good in the sense that it shows me my installed python 2.7, it shows me that I can use ipython and the like. But I can't pip install anything from that env, not even from pip in the python system's site-packages. And when I create a file in that virtualenv and try to run it, it says: $ /Users/username/dev/myfile.py Traceback (most recent call last): File "/Users/username/dev/myfile.py", line 1, in import sys, 50b96ab0b6
